A Christmas Hymn.

BY THE LATE ROBERT T. CONRAD.

[From an Uupublished MS.] Where, where is he? Thus spake the sages Who sought their Savior from afar; The King—the God—the Rock of ages, Who hither led us with his star?

Where is the King? But, star-forsaken, They searched the palace halls in vain; That Star of Hope its light was breaking O'er a low but on Bethlehem's plain.

They s.w-re-oiced-and knelt before him; And was it strange that thus they bowed?-When God's own Star was beaming o'er him,

And angel anthems hymn'd aloud?

Over the Man-God's humble birth.

Joy! For our orb's eclipse is over! Joy! Earth grows green in Heaven's own breatl With Faith around, and love above her, Hope to the hopeless-bliss to death!

Joy! Joy! With angles voices ringing Over the earth, can earth be dead? Let praise, and prayer, and joy, upspringing From a world saved, the glory spread!

Joy? For the faithul shall not perish! Christ lives to save, died to atone; But let this truth each bosom cherish: He saves the pure in heart alone!
